A child's world usually consists of the things right at the end of their fingertips. Books can offer kids a real opportunity to learn more about things that they may not see on a regular basis but it's a great way to take a fantastic voyage by just turning the pages.

Each of these colorful pages exposes your child to bright and colorful bugs from the yard, birds in the sky, leaves from the trees and fruit in the frig. Each time that you read this book, you can focus on something different...

“What color is each page?”

“Do you know what shape each items is on each page?”

You can put a piece of blank paper behind each page and let your child trace the picture to see what it looks like outside of the book. It may even be fun to talk about something else that each traced page reminds them of. The round circles may look like cookies. The rain dots may remind your child of cinnamon on their morning toast. Let your child have fun with their imagination and you too!!!
